President's Message

Happy New Year fellow woodworkers! I hope everyone had a wonderful and safe holiday season. During the holidays I built a walnut dining table for our daughter and a walnut bedside table for our daughter-in-law so I have been busy both at work and in the shop.

I am very excited about 2005 for our club. We are making some real changes that will enhance our ability to offer more and do more to promote woodworking in Birmingham. Probably the most important change is that we are applying for official non-profit status with the IRS. This will give us a tremendous opportunity to do fund raising by allowing contributions to be a tax write-off. This will give us money for more scholarships, more professional programs and more seminars (not to mention better quality hot dogs for our next cookout).

And, speaking of seminars, we are in the process of planning two or possibly three seminars this year. These will be all day Saturday events and will conducted by a professional woodworker. (see article page 3 for 1st of 3)

Of course, we will continue our traditions of show and tell, toy making and our annual juried show. We had a great '04. Let's kick off this year with a big turnout for our January meeting! See you there!

Paul

January Program, Coloring Wood

Mr. Dale Lewis, perhaps our Guild's most accomplished woodworker, will give a presentation on "Coloring Wood" at our January meeting.

Dale has both a Bachelors and Masters Degree plus additional advanced studies in art education.

His work exudes his love of wood and colorfully wacky imagination. Formal art training and television production experience add dimension to his creations. His carefully constructed work is artistically formed and lovingly finished. Whimsically elegant forms emerge influenced by both human and animal form. Fanciful themes frequently embody comedic elements. A selection of fine woods are often embellished by colorful dyes as well as inlays and carving.

Dale's work has been exhibited at numerous exhibitions through the southeast and Washington, D.C. plus he has won awards from Texas to Illinois, from Florida to Connecticut.

He is published in Furniture Studio, Fine Woodworking Design Books, Woodwork Magazine, American Craft and Artful Magazines.

Over the Hill Gang Meets Fridays at Woodcraft

Our "Fridays at Woodcraft" continue into 2005. Come on over about noon and bring a lunch. The guys eat and discuss projects. Afterwards they work on some sort of woodworking project. Lately it has been toys for Children's Hospital.

According to Buddy Finch the plan for 2005 is to make toys one Friday a month and branch out to other projects on the remaining Fridays. Come on by and see what they're up to!

To the "over the hill gang",

What can I say that would be strong enough to express my thanks to you and your efforts. You were the catalyst that made the reaction go to completion. There were many that helped but I would like to give special thanks to the "faithful four" who were present at nearly all the work sessions. They were Lee Beadles, Baron Bartlett, Bill Snipes and Paul LeSueur. Also thanks to Shane Carter and the crew at Woodcraft who have us work space and all the others who came by to give advice, harassment and help. It is wonderful to be a part of the Alabama Woodworkers Guild who use their many talents and skills to make others happy. Thank you!!!!!!

Buddy Finch

Best of Show 2004

At our November meeting Show Chairman, Walter Barnett presented the "Best of Show" ribbon to Cliff Daniels for his incredible scroll saw rendition of the 23rd Psalm. The following is a note we got from Cliff:

I didn't get to say much at our last meeting but I wanted each of you to know what a great honor it was for one of my pieces to win "Best of Show" at our recent show. This is especially true in light of the enormous talent in our guild.

My wife has always accused me of being a perfectionist. I don't really think I am, however I do believe that if you are going to take the time to do something, whether woodworking or otherwise, you should do it to the very best of your ability. It's obvious to me that a lot of folks in our group feel the same way. All you have to do is look at the quality of work that was in the show.

For those of you that participated in the show I commend you on the outstanding quality of your work and for those that chose not to participate this year I challenge you to began thinking about something you can do for next years show. Again, thanks for the honor.

Cliff Daniels

MAKING JIGS WITH ZANE POWELL

Zane Powell has been a full time faculty member of the Marc Adams school of woodworking since it began in 1992 and for those of you who know the quality of Marc Adams seminars this alone should be enough to make you want to attend. A professional woodworker for 22 years, Zane supervised the residential cabinetry division of Classic Woodworking, specializing in design and building complicated casework. He later started his own company specializing in building fine furniture. His work has been featured on the front cover of Builder Architect Magazine and in Indianapolis Monthly Magazine.

Zane will give us a workshop on making and using jigs. As everyone knows, jigs are tools that increase productivity and enhance quality. The workshop will be held March 5th in Shane Carter and Jim Lee's new shop and the tuition will be $60 which will include lunch. You can sign up at the January meeting. Mike Key will be taking reservations.

Workbench Class Begins February 5th with Fred Baker

You've been asking for it and here it is! For 10 Saturday mornings beginning on February 5th, Fred Baker will guide a class of no more than 10 students to build a European style work bench.

This is our most popular class by far. Folks have been asking when Fred would lead another class and we are lucky that he has agreed to teach this class one more time.

The classes will meet at the shop of Shane Carter and Jim Lee. The cost will be $85 per person. See Fred or Paul at the January meeting to reserve your spot.
